Goebel Makes Record Flight From California

Beats Existing Nonstop Transcontinental Record By Almost Six Hours—Trip Is Made in 18 Hours and 58 Minutes.

Curtis Field, Aug. 20 (AP).—Arthur Goebel landed here at 11:26 a.m. this morning after a nonstop flight from California, breaking the existing nonstop transcontinental record by almost six hours.

Goebel's first act as he stepped from the plane, which was the first to make the transcontinental flight from west to east, was to glance at his watch.

"Eighteen hours and 58 minutes," he exclaimed.

The record for transcontinental flight, made in the opposite direction, was 26 hours, fifty minutes, forty-eight seconds, set by Lieutenant John A. Macready and Oakley Kelly in 1923.

Goebel stumbled, from the stiffness induced by the long flight, as he stepped out of the plane. He recovered himself quickly, however, and said that he was not tired. "More hungry than anything else," he said.

He watched his plane, the Yankee Doodle, until it was safely lodged in a hangar, unspooled by oil or grime despite the distance it had covered.

Then Goebel turned to greet the small group which had collected at the field to await his arrival.

Barry Tucker of Santa Monica, Calif., companion and backer of Goebel on the flight, said he had timed the planes arrival above Curtis Field at 11:08 a. m., eastern daylight time. The monoplane made a few circles of the field before landing at 11:26.

Goebel said he had flown at altitudes of from 8,000 to 10,000 feet all the way, with favoring winds. The plane passed over Albuquerque, N. M., Wichita, Kas., St. Louis, Mo., and Columbus, Ohio, soaring above the latter city at dawn today.

BOMB EXPLOSION IN LIVE POULTRY "WAR"

New York, Aug. 20 (AP).—A live poultry "war" in the Brownsville section of Brooklyn today was held responsible for a bomb explosion that injured four persons and damaged the home of a Brooklyn poultry dealer.

The bomb, placed outside the door of the home of Joseph Hazenfratz, shattered the glass in all the windows of the home and the buildings on either side. The poultry dealer, his wife, their daughter and their niece were slightly injured.

Hazenfratz charged the "poultry trust" was responsible and said enemies of independent dealers had used gas bombs to asphyxiate poultry. Police said that last week Hazenfratz gave Federal authorities information about the alleged "poultry trust."

LOOK OUT FOR F. J. STEVENS OF "NATIONAL STATIONS"

National headquarters of the A. A. A. is in receipt of reports from several middle western states to the effect that the above gyp operator has been selling contracts to hotels and garages, representing himself as an agent of the A. A. A. It is reported that Stevens is driving a Jordan coach, with 1928 California license plate, No. 1064746. His contract calls for a payment of $35, with a down payment of $17.50, balance to be paid within one year. The receipt issued by Stevens gives the organization as "National Automobile Clubs, Washington, D. C." but investigation fails to disclose any such organization in Washington.

FIREMEN EXTINGUISH BLAZE IN CELLAR.

Fire in the small house at the rear of the Max Goldwasser property at 473 Wilbur avenue shortly after noon Sunday called the firemen from the Central and Fair street engine house. The premises are occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Isidore Seltzer.

While preparing dinner smoke was observed and the fire was discovered in a packing box in the cellar. When discovered the flames were eating their way through the kitchen partition. The box was carried out of the house by Mr. Seltzer and the firemen on their arrival in response to a still alarm made quick work of the fire. The damage was slight.

THOUSANDS ADMIRE CURTAINS FROM KINGSTON

The products of the United States Laces Curtains Mills of Kingston are being featured this week on the boardwalk at Atlantic City in the Du Pont Products Exhibit. They consist of lace curtains made of du Pont rayon in many attractive patterns designs. The colors displayed are cream, antique gold and sand. These curtains have attracted a great deal of attention from the thousands of people who weekly visit the exhibit.

T. B. Committee Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Ulster County Committee on Tuberculosis and Public Health will be held at Camp Hopland on Wednesday evening, August 22, at 7:30 o'clock. Annual reports will be made and plans for the future of the work will be discussed. A full attendance is urged.

Hoover to Visit 5 Kansas Cities

Where He Will Continue Conference With Republican Leaders as His Train Moves on to Iowa.

Hoover Train En Route to Kansas City, Aug. 20 (AP).—Having put behind him the admittedly debatable ground of Arizona and New Mexico, Herbert Hoover came today to rock-ribbed Republican Kansas to continue conferences with Republican leaders as his train moves on to his old birthplace, at West Branch, Iowa.

The Republican presidential candidate's schedule called for five stops, at Dodge City, Hutchinson, Newton, Emporia and Topeka, the home of his running mate, Senator Charles Curtis, who was unable to remain to greet the head of the ticket because of pressing engagements in the east.

David Mulvane, national committeeman, Senator Arthur Capper and J. N. (Poly) Tinker, former representative, who nominated Curtis for the presidency at Kansas City, were among the party leaders who were to board the train as it crossed the state. Plans for conducting a vigorous campaign were to be discussed.

Following his usual practice, Hoover will make brief rear-end platform talks at all of the Kansas cities, with a more extended one at the state capital.

Reception at Kansas City. From Topeka his train will go to Kansas City, Missouri, where it is due early tonight with Mayor Albert I. Beach and others planning a reception at the station while the special train is being switched to the Rock Island lines for the overnight run to West Branch.

While crossing New Mexico, the Republican candidate was joined by nearly a hundred of his party leaders, both men and women, who conveyed the information that the race in their state promised to be hotly contested. He received the same information Saturday regarding Arizona, but those of party affairs in each state expressed hope of victory in November.

Personalities in New Mexico.

Senator Bronson Cutting and Governor R. C. Dillon were of the opinion that the issue in New Mexico would be decided largely on the personalities of the Republican and Democratic candidates and on the wet and dry issue, with the prohibition question cutting across party lines. Asked if Hoover's prohibition declaration in his acceptance speech has been accepted as a "bone dry" pronouncement, Senator Cutting said it would all depend upon what one meant by "bone dry", that the general interpretation was that the Republican nominee stood for the Eighteenth Amendment and its enforcement.

Hoover got good receptions at the half a dozen places his train stopped in New Mexico, with Democrats as well as Republicans greeting him. At Albuquerque Senator Bratton and several other Democratic leaders shook hands with him, the Senator being the first to speak to him, reaching up to grasp the nominee's hands.

Politics Tabooed on Sunday.

Tabooing politics because of the Sabbath, Hoover spoke to the crowds at a number of places. At Albuquerque he paid tribute to the citizenship of New Mexico which he said was being developed from the blending of English, Spanish and Indian civilizations.

The commerce secretary evoked both applause and laughter by disavowing from his prepared text to remark that New Mexico once was known for its gunmen, but that now the gunmen had moved to the east and the state had become a model of civilization.

Just as a change in Hoover was noticeable during his westward journey a month ago, so it is in his return trip to Washington. As he moved to his home state of California, there was a marked lessening of the constant so evident at the outset. As he returns eastward he seems to be getting more and more at home with the crowds and if they are at all hesitant about crowding around his car, he smilingly invites them to come forward for personal greetings and a handshake.

Sunday Movies Up on Tuesday

It is expected that the Sunday movie question will come up at the adjourned meeting of the common council Tuesday evening at the Municipal Building on East O'Reilly street. At the last meeting of the council the minority report of the laws and rules committee favoring the holding of a referendum on the Sunday movie question this fall was tabled. The council also rejected the majority report of the committee, which called for the rejection of the proposition of holding a referendum on the question as it had been settled by the voters several years ago when the proposition was defeated at the polls.

Our Growing Population.

The following births have been reported to the board of health: Mr. and Mrs. William J. Freeman of New York city, a daughter, Mary, at Benedictine hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. John Crispino, 51 Albany street, a daughter, Mary.

Boy Drowned in Rondout Creek

Ernest Swart, 10, Drowned While Fishing in Rondout Creek Saturday Evening—Body Recovered Short Time Later.

Ernest Harry Swart, ten years old, was drowned while fishing in the Rondout creek, near the Ulster & Delaware coal trestle, about 7 o'clock Saturday evening. The body was recovered shortly afterward and efforts to resuscitate the lad proved futile.

The boy resided with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Swart of 18 Broadway. His father, Charles Swart, was killed on the railroad near Albany about a year ago, and his mother, who before marriage was Miss Catharine Leverence, died about eight years ago.

The boy had been fishing that afternoon and had caught a mess of fish which he took home to his grandmother to prepare for supper and then had returned to the creek to resume fishing.

Just how long the lad had been fishing is not known but the captain of one of the barges in the creek who had seen the boy fishing suddenly missed him. The captain called to Andy Anderson, another barge captain nearby, and they, together with Charles Kernan, a watchman along the dock, hurried to where the boy had been fishing.

The lad's pole and line were floating on the surface and when it was pulled to shore the men found the boy's body fast to it. One of the men hurried to the telephone and called police headquarters and Officer Simon Wood together with Fireman Fred LaTour of the Central Fire Station hurried to the dock with the inhalator. Others who assisted in trying to revive the boy were William D. Brinnier, Fireman John Hoffman and Miss Alice McLaughlin of Sleighsburg, but all efforts proved fatal.

Dr. Frank L. Eastman, who had been called, pronounced the boy dead after efforts to revive him had failed. The body at the request of the grandparents was turned over to Undertaker N. D. J. Murphy, and funeral services will be held Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock from the late residence on Broadway with interment in Montrose cemetery.

Besides his grandparents the lad is survived by two sisters, Josephine and Ida, and two brothers, Frederick and Charles. If the boy had lived until October he would have been eleven years old.

The dead boy was a great favorite with all who knew him and was a faithful member of the Sunday school of the Rondout Presbyterian Church.

Smith Ready For Campaign

Reply to White's Charges and Address Completed—Campaign Plans For the Immediate Future Not Made Known.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 20 (AP).—One of the big questions now facing Governor Smith is where and when his first shot of the presidential campaign will be fired.

He has completed his reply to William Allen White's charges involving his record as a New York state assemblyman which will be made public tomorrow morning, and most of the last minute details in preparation for delivery of his speech of acceptance Wednesday night, but he has yet to place his cards on the table as to campaign plans for the immediate future outside of Albany.

Some advisers are known to favor an initial oratorical charge by Labor Day, while others are believed to prefer waiting until some time after the holiday.

While there have been reports that Governor Smith would make a great number of speeches and indulge in the time-honored custom of rear-platform talking, the nominee is believed to be opposed to sustained outdoor oratory and in some quarters it is thought he will confine his stumpings to a limited number of strategic centers where the radio may be utilized to cover great stretches of territory that otherwise might have to be covered personally.

The governor will have his first opportunity to talk over his post-nomination plans with the arrival here of party leaders this week. Many are believed to be coming a day ahead of the Wednesday ceremony for just such a purpose.

Others will be met in New York City after the nomination. The nominee expects to leave here some time Thursday for the metropolis and to spend the better part of the afternoon and evening meeting those high in the councils of the party.

The following day he will leave for Sea Girt, N. J., where he will review the state national guard regiments and attend a big Democratic rally on Saturday. He will spend the week end near the sea coast and return to Albany to prepare for his trip to Syracuse, where he has engagements August 29, to attend the annual dinner given by Jerome D. Barnum, publisher of the Syracuse Post-Standard, and August 30 to take in the state fair. Any speeches he makes on these occasions will be non-political. At the fair he intends to discuss state problems.

Arctic Seas Hide Fate of Hassell

No Word Since 3 a. m. Central Standard Time Sunday, When Plane Was Then Flying Over Davis Straits.

Chicago, Aug. 20 (AP).—Arctic seas that pounced against Greenland's icy shores today concealed the fate of Bert Hassell's attempt to fly from Cochrane, Ont., to Mt. Evans, Greenland, in the monoplane Greater Rockford.

Not since 3 a. m. central standard time Sunday has any word come from Hassell and his companion, Parker Cramer, who left Cochrane at noon Saturday on the second leg of a good will flight from Rockford, Ill., to Stockholm, Sweden.

That last message, picked from the air by wireless operators at Madison, Wis., was only the letter "R," repeated several times, after the plane's call letters, HAH. The "R," however, indicated in the pre-arranged code that the Greater Rockford was 75 miles off Cape Chidley, flying over Davis Straits. It meant that the plane had completed approximately three-quarters of its 1,900 mile journey toward Mt. Evans.

Don Mix, the Madison, Wis., operator who had kept vigil at his wireless set through Saturday night and Sunday, was in communication with the station at Mt. Evans last night. The operator there told him there had been no sign no word of the plane.

Charles Smith, a Philadelphia wireless amateur, reported being in communication yesterday with the MacMillan station aboard the schooner Bowdoin at anchor in Anaktalik Bay, Labrador. The MacMillan operator reported that the plane had not been heard despite the fact that the MacMillan operator had kept tuned on the plane's wave length.

If Hassell and Cramer succeeded in landing in Greenland, there is speculation as to why they had made no effort to communicate through their own wireless set. It was pointed out, however, that difficulty might have been experienced in rigging a satisfactory aerial, or that the set might have been damaged in landing.

Weather Conditions Perfect.

Professor W. H. Hobbs, head of the University of Michigan expedition at Mt. Evans, wireless the Rockford Chamber of Commerce, sponsor of the flight, that the long delay in the plane's arrival could not be attributed to weather conditions. "Weather perfect all last night and today," Professor Hobbs messages.

The Greater Rockford took off Thursday from Rockford and made the flight to Cochrane, Ont., without incident. Starting the second leg of the journey at noon Saturday, the plane appeared to be making slower time than it had on the flight from Rockford to Cochrane. Reporting its position over Fort George River, 938 miles from Cochrane, at five o'clock central standard time, the plane was making only about 69 miles an hour. An hour later it was over Apiskigamish Lake, 526 miles from Cochrane, and the average speed was approximately 77 miles an hour.

Several hours passed before further word came from the plane, the reason probably being that a strong Gibraltar station, communicating with a station in Canada, set up interference that shut out reception of the Greater Rockford's signals. Finally, at 3 a. m., Sunday, there came a message that the plane was 75 miles off Cape Chidley, over Davis Straits—the final and most hazardous part of the hop.

1200 BRITISH MINERS PASS THROUGH QUEBEC

Quebec, Que., Aug. 20 (AP).—Twelve hundred British miners who are seeking relief from unemployment in Great Britain, passed through Quebec over the week end enroute to the harvest fields of western Canada.

Approximately 80 per cent of the men were former service men. They came to Canada under the British government plan to supply unemployed miners with work in the fields of Canada. Special trains carried them from Quebec on the second stage of their journey.

FOLLOWERS OF PREMIER VENIZELOS VICTORIOUS

Athens, Greece, Aug. 20 (AP).—Followers of Premier Venizelos were victorious in yesterday's parliamentary elections. It is probable they will occupy 170 of the 250 seats in the chamber of deputies.

Venizelos won his election contest in Piraeus and his son with 21 other Venizelists was elected in Athens. Among the victorious candidates is M. Papanastasiou. Former Premier M. Voulkris, leader of the extreme Royalists, was defeated.

GETS WORD EXPLORER WAS KILLED IN 1922

Rio Janeiro, Brazil, Aug. 20 (AP).—A report of the death of Colonel P. H. Fawcett, British explorer who has been missing in Central Brazil since 1925, was given out today by Vasco Abrey, radio amateur, who said he has been in touch with the Dyak search expedition.

"I received last Thursday a radio from the Dyak station on the Kuluene river in the Zingra region stating that Fawcett was killed by Indians in July, 1925," Abrey told the Associated Press.

Troopers Seek Girls' Assaultants

Brutal Assault Committed Near Highland Friday Night—Girl Had Attended Italian Carnival—Clothes Torn From Body.

State Troopers under Sergeant Lockhart and a sheriff's posse failed to locate the man or men who attacked Miss Frieda Antidomenico most brutally on the New Paltz road near Highland Friday night.

The officers, hampered by a lack of clues, are making a careful search of the locality where the assault was committed to bring about the arrest of the offenders, who have stirred the residents of Highland village by the commission of the worst outrage reported in many years.

Miss Antidomenico, who was graduated from high school in June, had been working as a waitress in the Mountain View Inn, Highland, for the past week in order to earn money for the continuation of her education. She attended the carnival in honor of the feast of St. Rocco's assumption, an Italian celebration, Friday night at Daughy's field on the New Paltz road and danced until 10 o'clock.

She started for home but had not gone far when an attack was made upon her. Her rough assailant, or several assailants, dragged her to a spot about fifty feet from the highway, where her clothes were torn from her body. Heavy blows were dealt by her captors when Miss Antidomenico endeavored to defend herself and screamed for help.

Clothing Used to Muffle Cries. The girl lapsed into unconsciousness from exhaustion and fear when her defensive efforts proved futile. When she recovered her senses the victim found her underclothing wrapped about her face to muffle her cries and her legs bound with a man's belt. Her body was a mass of bruises.

She arose and ran to a nearby store on the New Paltz road, where State Troopers were notified. The officers started a search for the assailant, but lack of substantial clues proved a hindrance in the search. The belt that was used to bind the girl's legs indicated that the one who attacked her must have been a large man. The belt was 42 inches long.

Miss Antidomenico after spending Friday night at the inn where she was employed, was taken to her home. There was great grief when the girl met her parents. She was accompanied by the proprietor of the inn, Sheriff V. J. Rockefeller of Dutchess county and two deputies.

Two arrests were made over the week end in Kingston on charges of operating automobiles while intoxicated. Vincent Spina of 17 Hasbrouck avenue was arrested Saturday on Broadway by Officer Hess charged with operating his car while intoxicated. This morning in police court he was represented by Attorney Chris J. Flanagan who entered a plea of not guilty and asked for an adjournment to August 28, which was granted, and bail bond was continued.

Randolph Watkins, a negro of New Paltz, was arrested Sunday on Ann street by deputy Sheriff Ernest Drews who charged the negro with operating his car while intoxicated. This morning a plea of not guilty was entered and the hearing adjourned to Wednesday. Bail was fixed at $250.

Ellsworth Fined $5

William Ellsworth of 441 Wilbur avenue was arrested Saturday afternoon on Broadway on a charge of public intoxication. This morning Ellsworth was fined $5 on his plea of guilty.

Passed Signal Light

Enea Pasquall of Long Island City, arrested for driving past the red signal light at Broadway and Foxhall avenue on Saturday, forfeited $10 cash bail by failing to appear in police court today.

Each Arrested the Other

Following an automobile collision on Broadway between the cars of John M. Avery of Fleischmanns and Lee Heffelfinger of Mansfield, Ohio, each driver arrested the other on a charge of public intoxication. This morning the case was held open.

FEDERAL GRAND JURY PROBE INTO VIOLATIONS

New York, Aug. 20 (AP).—News papers today said Mrs. Mabel Walter Willebrandt, assistant attorney general in charge of prohibition enforcement, was reported preparing to conduct in person a federal grand jury investigation into alleged liquor law violations by 26 recently raided night clubs. The grand jury is scheduled to reconvene today.

Mrs. Willebrandt, these reports had it, plans to remain in New York until she has examined the last of 125 witnesses, including many of social prominence, who have been summoned to appear before the grand jury.

Major Maurice Campbell, prohibition administrator for this district, said Mrs. Willebrandt would have nothing to do with the examination of witnesses.

Machold May Succeed Morris

Agreement Reached After Funeral Services for Morris—Hill Praises Machold—Lehman Stated To Be Democratic Nominee For Governor.

New York, Aug. 20 (AP).—Newspapers today said that H. Edmund Machold of Watertown had been agreed upon by State Republican leaders as the new chairman of the state committee to succeed the late George K. Morris.

The agreement on Mr. Machold, the papers said, was reached at a meeting in Amsterdam Saturday, immediately after the funeral services for Mr. Morris, who died here suddenly last Wednesday.

William H. Hill of Binghamton, state manager of the Hoover campaign, and most prominently mentioned as Mr. Hoover's successor, was present at the conference and acquiesced in the selection of Mr. Machold, they said. Mr. Hill issued a statement yesterday stating that he had never sought the office and praising highly the abilities of Mr. Machold.

Mr. Machold, president of the Northeastern Power Company, has long been active in politics and is a former speaker of the state assembly. He was a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor in 1924 but withdrew before final selection of Col. Theodore Roosevelt as the nominee.

Democrats to Name Lehman.

The New York World, an ardent supporter of Governor Smith, says today that Col. Herbert H. Lehman, finance manager for the governor in 1926, is slated to the Democratic nominee for governor. The World says its information that Col. Lehman has been decided upon as the nominee came from "sources of unquestioned authority."

Col. Lehman, a member of the banking firm of Lehman Brothers, has long been a close personal friend and political advisor to the governor, the paper says, and it is known that the governor wishes his successor to be a man thoroughly conversant with his policies and one who will carry on his program for state development.

Points which the World and other newspapers bring out as favoring Col. Lehman's candidacy are the fact that he is a prominent Jew, an overseas veteran of the World War and well known in the state because of his political and philanthropic activities. He is a graduate of Williams College, class of 1899, and recently donated $50,000 to his alma mater.

"It is known that he will have the backing of Tammany Hall if Governor Smith gives the word," the World says.

Other Democrats Mentioned.

Others who have been prominently mentioned as possible gubernatorial selections are: Surrogate James J. Foley, also a confidant of Governor Smith and high in the councils of Tammany, Public Service Commissioner George R. Lunn of Schenectady; Former Representative Peter G. Ten Eyck of Albany, United States Senator Robert F. Wagner and Representative Parker Corning of Albany.

"Baby Doll" Jailed For Using Razor

Clancy Dale, colored, of East Kingston and Ruth "Baby Doll" Reed, a big six foot negress, engaged in an argument at East Kingston Sunday evening and the argument changed to a fight and then "Baby Doll" closed the affair when she drew a razor and began to slash. Dale was considerably cut up and was brought to the City of Kingston Hospital where it was found the principal damage had been about the head and arms. "Baby Doll" was placed under arrest by Deputy Sheriff Watzka and with considerable difficulty she was landed in the county jail. She will be held there pending the outcome of Dale's injuries.

SLEIGH CAUGHT FIRE AT HARRISON & COMPANY

About 2 o'clock this morning the fire department was called out for a still alarm of fire at the W. R. Harrison & Company plant on Field Court where a sleigh that was stored under the loading platform had caught fire. The fire was soon under control with but slight damage.

SEVERAL MINOR AUTO CRASHES ARE REPORTED.

Several automobile collisions in which no one was injured were reported to the police department over the week end. Sunday afternoon Ethel May of Brooklyn, while driving on Foxhall avenue at Hasbrouck avenue, stopped for the red traffic light and her car was struck in the rear by the car driven by Mollier Keller of Brooklyn. There was but slight damage.

An automobile collision between the cars of George Simmons of Saugerties and Leo J. Gillen of Brooklyn at Albany and Foxhall avenues on Sunday resulted in damage to both cars.

Archie Curtis of Poughkeepsie Saturday evening reported that while his car was parked on North Front street it was run into by a car driven by Daniel O'Mara of 84 Cedar street, damaging it.

John J. Marone of 83 Cedar street reported that while he was stopped by the red signal light at Broadway and Foxhall avenue, his car was struck in the rear by a car of A. D. Raskin of New York.

Jerry F. Hart of R. F. D. No. 4 reported that while he was stopped by the red signal at Broadway and Foxhall avenue his car was struck by the car of Francis M. Seaman of Perth Amboy, N. J.

ARRESTED AT RIFTON ON FORGERY CHARGE.

Robert H. Van Kueran was placed under arrest Sunday evening at Pintard's Hotel at Rifton by Sergeant Phinney and Deputy Sheriff Ralph Constable. Van Kueran, who was born at Ottawa, Canada, and of late had been about New York state, is wanted at Johnston City, N. Y., to answer to a charge of forgery. A warrant was placed in the hands of local police when it became known that Van Kueran was at Rifton. The warrant was served Sunday evening and Van Kueran was brought to the county jail where he will be held pending the arrival of Johnston City officials. It is alleged that he is wanted on a charge of forgery, second degree. Van Kueran has been at Auburn prison, where his record shows a conviction for grand larceny, second degree. The Passaic, N. J., authorities also desire to locate Van Kueran, who it is alleged forged checks in that city.

EAST SIDE GANGSTERS SHOOT DOWN POLICEMAN

New York, Aug. 20 (AP).—Gangsters of Manhattan's lower east side today were believed to have used a pistol equipped with a silencer to shoot a policeman because of his activities against them.

George M. Egan was patrolling his beat on the lower east side when an automobile bearing four men drove up. Witnesses said they heard a sharp "ping" and Egan fell with a bullet in a thigh. The automobile sped away before Egan or persons in the street could obtain its license number or even its make.

Egan was taken to a hospital, where it was said he would recover. Other policemen said they believed he was shot by neighborhood gangsters for his activities against them.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press.)
Sag Harbor, N. Y.—Having lost a beautiful crop of 10-year old white-eyes through a misunderstanding, Edward Mulford Dering, who is in his 54th year, is growing another. On a lot day he fell asleep in a barber's chair. He wanted a trim, but the barber maintained that he was given no such directions. Dering found that old friends could not recognize him after his first clean shave since he became a man.

Oaxaca City, Mexico.—It was a sapling 3,000 years before Columbus discovered America and now it's a huge cypress. The tree was viewed by Ambassador Morrow on a visit to the ruins of the ancient city of Mitla.

New York.—A new orchestra known as the American Symphonette Ensemble is to give conductorless concerts. The idea is that the attention of the audience will be diverted from the personality of a conductor to the music.

Budapest.—Church bells today summoned folks to pray in the name of the country's patron saint, Stephen, for restoration of Hungary's pre-war frontiers.

New York.—Anybody who was curious from a distance about the gilded Diana that used to pulse about the old Madison Square Garden may satisfy himself by visiting the Metropolitan Museum of Art. The museum has obtained a copy of the original, a bit shorter and minus some drapery.

Newport, R. I.—This is a pretty strenuous week for tennis players at the annual casino tournament if they attend everything for which society's lach string is out. They are invited to a luncheon by Mrs. Vincent Astor, a dinner by her husband, a dinner dance by William H. Vanderbilt, a horse show, yacht races and sundry other functions.

New York.—A well-dressed, smiling man strolled along the board walk at Coney Island without attracting any attention whatsoever from thousands. He was James Walker, mayor of New York.

Water and Land

In the larger part of the irrigated sections of the United States, according to the specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture, "the water has a greater value than the land, there being plenty of land and a very limited water supply. The values of water and land are hard to determine separately. Improved land, and especially land devoted to more valuable crops, often is regarded as having high value; yet were this land deprived of its water it might be valueless."

WHY HOOVER? ASKS DEMOCRAT WHO WILL VOTE FOR HIM

August 17, 1928.

Why Hoover?
An independent Democrat I have tried to analyze what the Democratic National Party offers the business man or the average laborer and the nearest approach to a conclusion is that the paramount issue is prohibition. So far as the principles of Thomas Jefferson are concerned I am of the candid opinion that friend Tom, if he could come back and view the party as it now stands, would hurry back to his tomb in Monticello and stay there content to have more pleasant thoughts of the type of statesmen who framed the Constitution. The group of framers, whose vision and foresight has not seen an equal to date, put forth a document that has withstood the acid test of time and the assaults upon it have been many. Every politician ought to read it and study what it means.

It will explain thoroughly (even to the humblest man and woman) what the law of the United States Government stands for, why men back in Colonial days sacrificed their lives gladly for the cause they loved and why others "pledged their life, their fortune and their sacred honor" to the fulfillment of its ideals. What we need in America today, is a return to simple rules of civic and patriotic duties that every man, regardless of party, should not only practice but preach. We have seen our nation torn asunder by the Civil War and in the language of the poet, we have banished our anger forever, for on both sides they sleep, Blue and Gray, under the sod, and we respect and acknowledge that we are an actual United States today with no division. We honor and revere our Spanish War Veterans and those of our boys who sleep in Flanders Fields, that we might enjoy our peace and security for the ideals for which they fought as well as that portion of our boys for whom the war will never be over.

In the slogan of the American Legion is a wealth of wisdom that some of our political leaders could well afford to follow and repeat. "In peace as in war we serve." What we need is more men who will pledge themselves to the "we serve" and prove their worth to the American Nation and the retirement of political parasites and tricksters, and it is entirely up to our women to reason deeply as to what the coming election means to the future prosperity of all and go and vote for continuation of American ideals.

Religion has no right to be injected into any campaign and the trouble with some of the Democratic leaders is that they should have the "smaller fry" thoroughly understand that you cannot antagonize business men or civic workers and expect them to vote or have confidence in them or the party any more than some of the fanatical Smith boosters, who immediately brand a man or woman, exercising their prerogative to vote as their conscience dictates, as a bigot, for not voting Smith, can expect these people to be a "good fellow" and vote Smith.
So far as prohibition is concerned, it is the smallest subject to be considered prominently. It is the law of the United States and it will be enforced more efficiently when men in public life will live up to their oath of office to uphold the Constitution and dissolve their affiliations with the lawbreaker. It is not creditable to any man holding a position of trust and responsibility mourning publicly and offering floral tributes to a known lawbreaker who might have been shot down on a public highway by one of the various factions in the illicit traffic. It is a direct challenge to the judicial officers of our government as well as to every man and woman when any man engaged in this illicit traffic can become so brazen as to murder another or to threaten or attempt anything against the peace and security of others because they believe they are immune from prosecution and openly boast of their affiliation in high places. It is a duty to every man and woman to see that these men don't get into public office via their ballot. Where they are known, as being in office, the public should see to it that as soon as possible they are retired permanently from public trust.

What brought us prohibition? If it was not for the fact that many people never knew when they had enough liquor consumed and constituted themselves a public nuisance by their intemperance and disregard of moral and social laws we probably would never have had the law on the books. Having been the direct cause of its enactment upon the statutes why cannot they show their sportsmanship and take their medicine? Why should the temperate man or woman want to go to the trouble of helping this element to change the law so they can start all over again? This isn't a political question, it is a purely social, economic problem and there are more weightier problems than prohibition in a presidential campaign.

What about farm relief? That is far more important. What about the Kellogg peace proposal? What about the attitude of the congressional or senator as well as the Presidential nominee, or the war debts? Would the Democrats adhere to what has been accomplished or would they say its obligations are not binding on a Democratic administration and thus advertise us to the world as being unworthy of trust? What kind of proposition would they offer France in 1923 as a payment of 20 millions due America? Would they disregard the War Debt Commission work? What is their attitude on the Germany reparations revisionment of terms?

All this even a blind, deaf and halt Democrat will admit affects every man and woman in the U. S. The Republican party admits its responsibility and the sacredness of maintaining our agreements abroad and collecting every dollar we loaned and which in many cases the American public, through bonds loaned this money to the U. S. What about China and our diplomatic relations? What about our internal problems right here in America? Is the Democratic party the poor man's party or has it now bought a silk plug hat and all lowly origins must be soft pedaled for we do now walk on expensive oriental rugs?

There are many more problems than trying to sail a ship so important as the Federal Government on a log of whiskey. The Hoover address is a clear statement that shows the American voter who wants to think for himself or herself where Hoover stands. Rum is not the paramount issue. You can't win intelligent men's and women's votes today by an assault on the Constitution of the U. S. If the Democrats in office will not cooperate to enforce the laws locally, why promote them or continue them further in office. Not that the Republicans are "angels." Without bias or prejudice, it is indeed a hard matter for a man interested in building a permanent business in Ulster and elsewhere and who is deeply interested in the revival of Rosendale cement and who has taken an active interest in the fight for good government locally at his own expense, to support a party whose local leaders have been openly antagonistic and in one specific instance (which I shall be glad to enumerate in detail if the party desires publicly) I have the unique distinction of seeing a local leader practically openly doing everything to discredit me personally as well as to wreck my civic activities, in which he has the support of some good assistants here in Binnewater as well as in Rosendale. Fortunately the public does not agree and the result of this obstructionistic campaign has led me to select Hoover.

I would display a very small sense of honor to support at this time Herbert Hoover and try to have people imagine I was for Alfred E. Smith. A good Democrat, I believe personally, is one who endeavors to work for the civic betterment of his community without thought of personal political advancement or financial gain at the expense of others and one who willingly, if able, serves his country's colors without hesitation when necessary and acknowledges the laws of the land by trying to be a good citizen, and in doing so I find my interests best served by eliminating Smith off my list entirely. In other words, I am from Missouri.

INTERNATIONAL POST-OLYMPIC TRACK AND FIELD MEET.

Berlin, Aug. 20 (AP).—At the end of two days of rigorous competition against the pick of German, British and Finnish athletes today found the United States able to boast of but three victories in the international

The Roots of Achievement

Binghamton (N. Y.) Sun

Post-Olympic track and field meet held here Saturday and Sunday.

Ed Hamm, George Tech all-around man, registered the only American triumph Saturday when he captured his specialty, the broad jump, and then climaxed that feat yesterday by running anchor on a 400-meter relay team that defeated the crack Frankfurt quartet.

The other American triumph was scored by Bud Spencer, of Stanford, who galloped off with the 400-meter run in the splendid time of 47 4-5, defeating among others, the German record holder, Joachim Buechner.

In the 100 and 200-meter sprints, however, the Yankees found German competition too tough for them. Hubert Houben won the 100 with Russell fourth, and Helmut Koernig took the 200 with Russell second. Koernig set a new German record of 20 9-10 seconds.

In the long distances, chief interest centered in the 800-meter duel between Douglas Lowe, the Olympic champion, and Dr. Otto Felsler, the great German runner. Felsler showed greatly improved form over his performance at Amsterdam but he still was forced to trail the flying Briton and galloped the distance in 1:51 1-5.

KITCHEN KINKS

Green peas and mushrooms are delicious in combination.

Use honey instead of sugar in the baked apples for a change.

Try baking fresh mackerel in milk, replenishing the milk as it cooks away. Delicious.

Strain sauce and gravies that are not smooth. Don't serve them with lumps in them.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Aug. 20 (P).—Resumption of the upward price movement in today's stock market was impeded, but not entirely checked, by a marking up of call money rates. Despite the credit stringency, pools were actively at work in a wide assortment of issues, with a score or so of new high records established on gains ranging from fractions to seven points.

Call money renewed at six percent, but as banks began to call loans the rate was advanced to 6 1/2 percent and finally to 7. About $25,000,000 in loans was called by early afternoon. Time money rates were slightly firmer, being quoted at 6 1/2 to 7 1/2, instead of 6 to 6 1/2.

Buying operations centered largely in the low-priced railroad, tobacco, food and merchandising shares. Motors were mixed, with the strength of Chrysler and the heaviness of General Motors as the contrasting features of that group. Jewel Tea advanced 7 points to a new peak at 133 and Commercial Investment Trust 4 1/2 to a new top at 77 1/2. Sears Roebuck climbed 6 points to a new high record at 125 1/2.

Tobacco Products was bid up 5 1/2 points and United Drug, United Cigar Stores, Central Alloy Steel, Gold Dust, Radio and International Telephone sold 3 or more points higher, although part of the gains were lost on realizing.

Renewed selling of Manhattan Electrical Supply carried that stock down more than 6 points to a new low at 36 1/2, which contrasts with a high of 66 1/2 earlier in the year and a record high of 132 a year ago. Columbia Gas, American Locomotive and Southern Dairies also yielded readily to selling pressure.

Poisonous Mushrooms Described By Expert

"Know your mushrooms like you know your friends, if you would avoid unpleasant or possibly fatal consequences from too intimate association with the wrong sort," is the advice of F. C. Stewart, botanist at the Experiment Station at Geneva.

and as an authority on New York state mushrooms.

As a safety measure, it is important that everyone who collects and eats wild mushrooms should know the Amanita pictured above, as most of the deadly poisonous toadstools belong to this group of fungi, says this authority. Some of the Amanitas are edible, but those who avoid all specimens which resemble them run little risk of being fatally poisoned.

"The outstanding features of the poisonous Amanita are white gills, a collar on the stem, and a bulb or shallow cup at the base of the stem. The spores are white. The color of the cap may be white, grayish brown, smoky brown, orange red, or otherwise. In some species the surface of the cap is smooth, while in others it is adorned with numerous warts or fragments. The bulb is sometimes buried in the soil and may be overlooked unless one digs for it. The collar sometimes breaks away from the stem and disappears. These facts should be borne in mind. The Amanitas usually, but not invariably, grow in the woods, and their season is from July to late autumn. The so-called egg stage of the Amanitas is sometimes mistaken for the buttons of a common edible mushroom.

"Of the 500 or more kinds of fleshy fungi which grow in New York, the great majority are edible, or at least, are not poisonous," says Mr. Stewart. "Only a few kinds are deadly poisonous and even those which merely cause illness or discomfort are not of many kinds. Nevertheless, it would be a difficult undertaking to describe the various harmful species in such a way that they could be readily identified by the average person. And there is no simple test which can be used to determine whether a particular fungus is edible or poisonous. The peeling test, the silver test, and the various other popular tests are all unreliable. For the layman the only safe procedure is to eat only the particular kinds which he knows to be edible and avoid all others. One must learn to recognize the edible fungi at sight in the same way that he recognized the common plants and the faces of his friends."

ELEANOR GUNN ON FASHIONS

New York—At a time when the curtain has just gone up again on the fall showings, with their interesting settings, the maisons of the grande couture, it may be well to record that our own season, in New York, was ushered in by a style show at which the widely heralded street shades were started.

Members of the association under whose auspices this show was given departed from their usual custom of launching three definite shades, and contented themselves, and better satisfied their spectators, by introducing groups of color or a whole family of color, rather than individual members or tones. These families were introduced under their correct names, such as brown, green, blue, and red.

Guava Reds, Harvest Browns. Certain shades or members, however, were especially fostered. Representing the reds, for example, was but one member, and that was christened guava. In order to distinguish the fashionable browns from the less desirable members of that enormous family, the association bracketed those shown as the harvest browns and designated the greens as the Normandy greens, which implies that they are a bit blue for all their social prestige.

The blues, which were tinged with purple, were listed as moderne blues. So much for the American conception of the correct autumnal color scheme. Continuing to look ahead toward fall, it is well to mention that a few fabrics others than velvet are under discussion. One is so apt to lose sight of everything but velvet, so widely is it being broadcast.

Importance of Suede. Millinery remains rather stubborn and continues to be of felt, in novelty finishes, though not altogether to the exclusion of velvet. There are close-fitting velvet turbans and toques, yet the center of interest remains on the newer felts and on the recently revived hatters' plush. While reptilian leathers are not entirely ousted from the by-paths of fashion, it is suede that indicates those who toe the mark. Suede gloves and handbags fall in line.

Furriers prate mysteriously of flat furs, but have an eye on beaver and fisher, the latter to replace fox. White caracul and lamb, sometimes combined with black, are acclaimed for evening. So, by the way, is lame, and, to complete the circle, which began with velvet, so is velvet itself. (Copyright, 1928, by Metropolitan Newspaper Service, New York)

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

A Stylish Design.

6214. Very smart and unusual is this artistic model. It makes an excellent afternoon dress in printed chiffon over a flesh color crepe slip. It will also be attractive in polka dot silk, and is equally pleasing in georgette or satin. The waist is bloused on an underbody, above a fitted yoke, to which the skirt is attached, that features the popular slant, dipping at the right side to match a similar shaping on the bolero may be finished separately or omitted.

The pattern is cut in 5 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure. To make this charming model as portrayed in the large view for a 38 inch size will require 1 yard of 32 inch lining for the underbody, and 5 1/2 yards of 35 inch material for the dress. It made without the bolero. 4 1/2 yards of 35 inch material is required. The width of the dress at the lower edge with fullness extended is 2 1/2 yards.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 15c in coin or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Kingston, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

On Rearing Children

from CRIB to COLLEGE

Compiled by the Editors of "CHILDREN, The Magazine for PARENTS"

As children find splendid qualities in parents, they imitate them unconsciously.

It is too late to start being a pal to your son when he is a man. You must start young, before he reaches the difficult "teen age" when outside influences and interests begin to absorb him. The main thing that aims our young people today is the indifference of their parents a few years ago. And the thing that will save that boy of yours from the same follies and excesses that menace our fine youths in this year of grace is for his father to begin today to be his pal. Share his activities with him as much as you can. Cultivate hobbies that you can follow together. Hours spent tramping the hills or puttering over a carpenter's bench will be priceless links in later years to bind you together.

Many a wholesome dish of prunes, oversweet, lukewarm and discouraged from waiting on the pantry shelf is rejected, though it might have been eagerly eaten if served delicately chilled from the ice box. Cold apple sauce with hot ginger bread, or warm crisped cereals (such as cornflakes or grape-nuts, or heated, buttered shredded wheat) will awaken a new interest in old and young, who may balk at these good old friends otherwise.

The setting free of the child should start almost as soon as he leaves the cradle. At least the parents should consciously face the necessity of gradually getting the child ready for the test life will finally make. The breaking of home ties should not be sudden, an emotional cataclysm, but the result of a steady, increasing development of the child's confidence and judgment. To accomplish this the parent must plan from the beginning to help the child grow in power to take care of himself; the parent also must give the child more and more opportunity to build up self-reliance, and only by adding to his freedom as he advances in years can such a policy be carried to success.

The woes of "the second summer" and "teething" are, in the majority of cases, the result of improper feeding. To boast that a fifteen-month-old baby "eats everything" is not a tribute to his precocity, but to the ignorance or willful negligence of his mother.

Not every child can have a wild flower garden, but if the child has an opportunity to go to the woods for these plants, and if there is a rich, shady spot in the garden where they may be planted, much pleasure will result from it. If he is impressed with the fact that our wild flowers must be conserved, he can easily be encouraged to bring home only one or two plants of a kind for his garden. A wild flower handbook should be available, so that he may become familiar with the names of these plants. His acquaintance with them will be a joy to him whenever he meets them in the woods; his love for all things out of doors and his appreciation of rain, sunshine and all of nature's work will be greater because of his interest in his own small garden.

Buttercup Yellow with White or Beige

An Accordion Pleated Skirt of Pale Pink Crepe Is Matched by a Dark Blue Jersey Sweater with Insets of Pink Crepe Forming a Color Scheme Rather Popular in the Smart Parisienne Set.

The Popular Cardigan Costume. A Light Blue Crepe Cardigan Is Worn with a Jersey Jumper Banded with Circular Skirt and Worn with a Red Dark Blue. The Skirt Has Four Inverted Pleats at the Front and the Back.

Very Unusual Is This One-Piece Dress of Gray Maroon. Cut with a Circular Skirt and Worn with a Red Leather Belt, Red Handkerchief, and Red Felt Hat.

The Mode Now Essentially Feminine—Buttercup Yellow Rivals Blue for Evening.

New York—The feminine type of woman is now having her innings. She may be as sweet as is consistent with modern manners, and as much of a clinging vine, in appearance, as she is by nature. Soft fabrics and soft colors, soft lines and soft touches of lace make the new mode essentially charming. The cleverness with which it is handled, especially in the cut of the garment, offsets any danger of its being too saccharine.

Yellow, a color essentially feminine, has blossomed forth in the brighter buttercup tones for evening, and is rivaling blue. Starting with ivory and egg shell, yellow by courtesy only, the tints take on a livelier tone, until they seem a joyous reflection of the sun. Such tones will be instrumental in dispelling the gloom it is possible to foresee if the smart world takes literally the admonition to adopt street shades for evening.

Among the browns over which one is asked to enthuse for evening is bedouin; another is marron. Among the blues are Gainsborough and combinations that shade into green or are effectively contrasted with green. There is no reason to believe, at this early date, that color contrasts will have become a too oft-repeated scheme. After the myriad of color schemes indulged in during the summer, it seems not unlikely that our ideas on color will, with the coming of autumn, become more subdued.

Autumn's own tones, yellows, russets, bronzes and faded tones generally, are quite naturally subjected to a revival, but against this is the radiance of buttercup yellow, with its joyous and youthful message of winter gaiety.

Costume Party At Crosspatch

A komical karakter kostume party will be given at Crosspatch Community Center Saturday evening, August 25.

The young people had such a good time at the recent party that they persuaded Mrs. Cross to give "just one more party" before she goes back to New York. Quite a group of the people who love to dance are already arranging their costumes. You do not need to have either a fancy or a fancy costume in order to be welcome at Crosspatch. All the neighbors for 20 miles around are invited to come and wear whatever seems most cool and comfortable.

The costume idea appeals to nearly everybody. Nearly everybody likes to dress up in odd things and play at being somebody different from themselves.

The komical karakter idea gives an opportunity for a costume that may be funny and yet not expensive to fix up.

If there are some who have old-fashioned costumes of their grandmothers tucked away in some old trunk in the attic, they should bring them out and wear them to the party. Some of these quaint old costumes look funny compared to the skimpy styles of today, but they are very interesting.

Those who desire to come masked may do so. Masks are a lot of fun and the crowd at Crosspatch comes from all directions so there would be some guessing as to who is who—but masks are pretty hot in this weather, so you can wear a mask or not, just as you please, but if you want to give joy and receive it, you should do a little something in the way of a costume. This is the prettiest time of the year in the country and Crosspatch will be all dolled up to receive its guests on August 25.

Mrs. Cross has a very chic French doll that she brought from New York. She intended to dress it in some quaint costume and pose it among the cushions in the living room. However, if she has time she will dress the doll and give it to the one who makes the lucky guess. The doll is one of those sophisticated creatures with very long, thin arms and legs and a very naughty, bored expression. Her name is "Herself" and if she does appear on the scene there will be lots of rivalry as to who shall take her home labelled "Mine for evermore". So everybody is expected to come and have a jolly time on August 25 for after that there will be no more parties until Christmas.

DO LOVERS OF DOGS

CONSIDER ALTERNATIVE?

Health News, the official publication of the New York State Department of Health, in a recent issue says: The second death of a human being from rabies within two months has been reported to this department. This latest case was a lineman, age 44, a resident of Mount Vernon, who was bitten on the hand about the middle of June. There is uncertainty as to the dog that inflicted the bite, though there is a probability that it was the same one that bit ten children in Mount Vernon on June 12 and was found to be definitely rabid. This man disregarded his wound, it was not cauterized with fuming nitric acid and he did not receive antirabic treatment. On July 20 he was admitted to the Mount Vernon Hospital where he died the following day. The clinical diagnosis of rabies is supported by autopsy in the finding of what appeared to be Negri bodies in the brain.

The ten children mentioned above all had their wounds cauterized with fuming nitric acid and antirabic treatments were started the day following the bite. None of these has developed rabies nor is it expected that any of them will. To avoid its possibility, however, they have had to undergo a course of treatment that is extremely painful and prolonged. Dog lovers who inveigh against the "cruelty" of muzzling dogs might well consider this alternative.

CAS SUGGES—Who is Mr. Don Avilon?

THE MYSTERY OF VIOLA AVILON'S ASPIRATION OVER SEEMS HER HOME-TOWN POSTMARK ON A LETTER ADDRESSED TO MR. SNOOP, WAS PARTLY EXPLAINED BY READING THE CONTENTS.

What's in a Name?

"That which we call a rose by any other name would smell as sweet." Yea verily brother! But suppose the Wilson family had called their little boy Willie instead of Woodrow, what then? Who then would have kept us out of war? Strong indeed must have been the character of the parents who could look on that chubby infant and call him Woodrow, when the language was full of Herberts and Alfreds.

The Hoover clan gazed fondly on the face of their infant son, struggled gamely for a fifty, and then flung Robert, Charles and Samuel in the discard with hardly a quiver. The tribe of Smith gave one long, adoring look at the prize package the inspired stork had left them, and the earliest returns showed an irresistible and overwhelming land-slide for Alfred, with a strong vote in the more ecclesiastical precincts for Emmanuel.

What's in a name? Oh, well—It's a queer, queer world—from where I sit. A stream of life goes by. I watch the changing shadows flit. And under a turquoise sky. I think of things that I might have done. And woe that I might have missed. And friendly smiles that I might have won. And lips that I might have kissed. It's a queer, queer world—on history's page. The Smiths go marching on. With fancy names for every age. But the greatest of these is John.

There's plenty of room at the top but very few can perform the balancing act after reaching it.

Rock Moses Smote Still Gives Up Water

The Field Museum Expedition of Chicago has found the famous rock in Horeb which legend says yielded water to the thirsting Israelites when Moses smote it with his rod. Above is the rock and the Wady Musa (Stream of Moses). Below, at left, is a close-up view of the stream. Henry Field (lower right) is shown at the opening of the rock.

Damascus, Syria, Aug. 18 (AP).—Out of the rock which Moses is said to have struck with his rod to make water gush forth a little stream still is trickling into the Syrian desert. The Field Museum Syrian Desert Expedition of Chicago, in its search for prehistoric remains of human life in the deserts of Mesopotamia and Trans-Jordan, has come across the famous rock in Horeb which legend says yielded water to the thirsting Israelites crossing the desert.

They found the rock giving a liberal supply of water as it must have done in the first days of its miraculous glory. A steady creek of cool liquid flows from the rock and forms the Wady Musa, or stream of Moses.

The Wady is a great boon to travelers and their camels. Its water is clear and eminently drinkable. At the same time it is a place of reverence to many pilgrims who bless it not only for its comfort, but also for its historical associations.

It was at this spot that Moses faced one of the most difficult moments of the desert-crossing. The Bible can tell the story much better than a journalist:

"And the people thirsted there for water; and the people murmured against Moses, and said, Wherefore is this that thou hast brought us up out of Egypt, to kill us and our children and our cattle with thirst?"

"And Moses cried unto the Lord, saying, What shall I do unto this people: they be almost ready to stone me."

"And the Lord said unto Moses, Go on before the people, and take with thee of the elders of Israel; and thy rod, wherewith thou smotest the river, take in thine hand, and so."

"Behold, I will stand before thee there upon the rock in Horeb; and thou shalt smite the rock, and there shall come water out of it, that the people may drink. And Moses did so in the sight of the elders of Israel."

"And he called the name of the place Massah and Meribah, because of the chiding of the children of Israel, and because they tempted the Lord, saying, Is the Lord among us or not?"

Judging from the location of the water, it would be difficult to say what portion of an enormous rock which juts up out of the desert sand Moses actually struck. To find the apparent source of the water the Field Museum representatives had to peer into a small cave in the center of a sprawling mass of stone.

The water-spot is a brief respite in an unbroken series of desert wells, stretching to the north toward Damascus and to the east toward Bagdad.

Not far from the rock in Horeb upon the summit of a high peak overlooking Feiza, the "rose red city half as old as time," lies the tomb of Aaron, who guided the Israelites after Moses died.

This spot is sacred to Moslems, and no Christian is allowed to ascend this mountain, for death is the penalty.

Curtis Speech Of Acceptance

Topeka, Kansas, Aug. 19 (AP).—Appointment of a joint Congressional committee to work out a solution of the controversial agricultural problem on a "non-partisan" basis was proposed Saturday by Senator Curtis, of Kansas, in his address accepting the Republican Vice Presidential nomination.

Senator Curtis, who long has been identified with the legislative battles of agriculture, spoke at length on the farm relief problem. As he offered his suggestion for a cure he called for a "united impenetrable front" of Republicans and lauded Herbert Hoover as "well worthy of the party's choice; a credit to it and to the nation, both in the eyes of our people and of the world."

"The question of the proper relief for agriculture is a trying and perplexing one," he declared. "The problem is of deep-seated economic importance to every citizen without regard to his occupation or his political party. Properly its solution is and always should be non-partisan."

"I am convinced that if a small joint committee of the House and Senate were appointed to study the problem and to find its proper solution, the necessary relief quickly could and would be afforded. The committee could be assisted in its task by the advice and experience of the most capable experts on the subject whose services can be obtained."

Senator Curtis supported the McNary-Haugen farm bill last session after pressing two of his own which were sponsored in the House by Democrats but he voted to uphold the veto of President Coolidge of the McNary-Haugen measure on the basis of his responsibility to the administration as its leader in the Senate.

He also proposed today tariff revision by the next Congress to obtain higher duties on some agricultural commodities and like Mr. Hoover saw great hope in the extension and improvements of inland waterways. The Senator believed the Republican party has done much for the farmers already and declared that without that help, the agricultural situation "would be infinitely worse than it is."

Government finances, labor, law enforcement and the "encouragement of women in government" were other subjects emphasized in the brief address delivered from the state house steps here in the birthplace and home of the Kansas Senator.

In praising Mr. Hoover as a man whose "extensive knowledge, training and experience well fit him to guide the country wisely and justly to new heights of renown," Senator Curtis referred also to President Coolidge, declaring that "the policies of Calvin Coolidge are those of our party and are expressed in our platform."

"They are Mr. Hoover's and they are mine," he said. "They are those of Washington, Lincoln and Roosevelt. There must be no disloyalty within our ranks, and there will be none. Republicans may quarrel among themselves, but not at such a time as this."

Declaring "I am opposed to the repeal of the Eighteenth amendment or of the Volstead Act," Curtis reminded his Kansas friends of his record as prosecuting attorney of Shawnee county to show that "I believe in and practice enforcement of the law." It is one of his proud boasts that he "dried up" Shawnee county.

The Republican Vice Presidential nominee struck out hard at those who have suggested state control of alcoholic beverages. He related that all but two of the states ratified the Eighteenth Amendment and by "this voluntary action which binds all, the states delegated to the Federal government their full original power and responsibility on the liquor prohibition question."

"For the Federal government now to adopt, or even to propose or to favor, a policy which will result in allowing each state to determine for itself the alcoholic content of beverages manufactured, sold and transported throughout the country, would be a direct and indefensible attempt on its part to evade or abdicate the responsibility so delegated and assumed, and an endeavor to redelegate that responsibility to the several states from whence it came, without any justification."

"I believe in meeting an issue squarely, therefore I state that not only am I heartily in favor of faithfully enforcing all our laws, but, further, I am opposed to the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment or of the Volstead Act."

Fourteen means of promoting good government and "maintaining the era of national prosperity never before equaled by any nation on the face of the globe" were outlined by the senator as follows:

"1. To protect agriculture effectively, and to encourage it in every proper manner.

"2. To protect American labor by enacting all needed legislation, and by encouraging closer relations between labor and capital.

"3. To enforce the laws without fear or favor.

"4. To encourage active participation by women in the conduct of the government.

"5. To reduce the public debt, public expenses, and taxes.

"6. To maintain peace, engage in commerce with all nations, and to enter into alliances with none.

"7. To encourage all industry and to maintain a protective tariff with duties high enough fully to protect American producers, American products, and American labor against foreign competition.

"8. To develop, aid, and encourage means of transportation and communication, national and international, by land and water, and in the air, through the consolidation of railroads; the establishment of a complete system of inland waterways; the re-establishment of a strong Merchant Marine; a strong postal and commercial aircraft service; and a wider and more efficient use of the ever-increasing possibilities of the radio.

"9. To give equal and exact justice to all men of whatever race or persuasion."

Use to all men of whatever race or persuasion.

"10. To support the State governments in all their rights."

"11. To preserve the Federal government in its whole constitutional vigor, and to maintain and expand the existing high state of national consciousness."

"12. To preserve the liberty of the press; the freedom of speech and worship; civil liberty and security of individual rights; and to promote the cause of education among the people."

"13. To protect the lives and property of our citizens by the completion of an adequate system of flood-control for the Mississippi river and its tributaries, and elsewhere if necessary, to prevent a recurrence of a disaster such as recently occurred in the Mississippi Valley."

"14. To continue a generous policy in the fulfillment of obligations to veterans of our wars, and to extend it to their widows, orphans and dependents."

For Good Health—A Frigidaire

The modern doctor, interested in the science of health, knows that proper preservation of food is necessary for the well being of his patients. In poorly refrigerated foods lurk the bacteria of contamination and illness. A temperature below 50 degrees is regarded as safe for keeping food healthful and palatable.

In Frigidaire, the modern electric refrigerator, a cold, dry atmosphere, as designated by scientific experts, is automatically maintained. Milk, butter, and other perishable foods retain their freshness and flavor over a long period. Many progressive physicians equip their homes and their laboratories, as well, with Frigidaire. Surely, what the doctor considers necessary for the health of his own family should be a good example for his clientele.

During August we will make an allowance of $10 on your old refrigerator toward the purchase of a Frigidaire.

Few landmen can understand the depth of a seaman's love for the wild, white-topped breakers. Storm is the measure of a man's mettle. If he fears it is nothing. He must fight the storm's fury with his teeth in the wind; fight it gloriously; meet its onslaught with grim laughter and beat it at its own game. Otherwise, he is not a seaman, but a pale, puny landlubber.

From a family of seamen came Norman Erickson. Years of life on the ocean and the Great Lakes had made him a hardy fighter. All-accept Norman. He was afraid—afraid, a fear that was more than physical had followed him through his boyhood. A fear of what the sea could do in times of stress. Tales of his boyhood had trickled into his mind. Tales as had heard on nights when the icy winds of the lake had battered at the door like some evil spirit.

Where was the blood of his Norse ancestors, the blood of Lief the Lucky and Eric the Red? This is the story of how Norman Erickson battled fear. Once, twice he almost won the victory, but fate tricked him. His moral courage rose, but the menacing lake was too much for his physical powers. He was ridiculed—became a marked man. His stout Norse father sneered, rebuked him for a coward and finally cast him off.

Then came a great moment—a supreme test. Something more than from entered the soul of Norman Erickson. He faced the evil genius of the lake in one of its most terrible moods, faced the hobgoblins of the storm and beat them down. Norman Erickson conquered fear.

Life was extraordinary. Here he was, his mother dead not a week, and this thing he had dodged all his life immediately caught up with him. A job in the fishing fleet!

He had worked more than three years for Hans Miller, who owned the store in Madrid Bay, helping the fat Dutchman put up ice and do other odd jobs in winter, in summer delivering the ice and fresh green vegetables to the back doors of resort cottages along Ottawa lake. From the beginning his father had objected to the wagon. The day Miller took him on, the boy had run down the wharf to his father's fish shanty to tell him the news.

"Your name's Erickson," Gustaf exploded when Norman paused for breath. "An Erickson driving a grocery wagon!"

Norman still remembered it resentfully. His mother had taken no part in that quarrel. Her bewildered black eyes were troubled at the argument, but she offered no counsel. Only once, and he remembered none the anxiety on her face, she had taken him aside and reminded him dutifully, but with no conviction that other boys fished with their fathers.

It was the winds Norman dreaded; the rage of waves dismayed him. All ways during the tempestuous weather of three-day blows, he remembered Gustaf's story of the schooner Gottland, and the captain's dog. He'd not tell his father that.

"A dam' poor Erickson," old Gustaf would complain. "No stomach for winds, plough!"

Gustaf made that "plough!" an ugly word. He had a way of thrusting it into Norman's flesh like a fish knife. To be sure he never heard it again. He had stayed in his father's house because of his mother, hadn't he? To right, tomorrow, he could start out unmindful of winds and weather. He could leave the lake and all its distasteful memories, could settle somewhere beyond the hills.

And farm? He walked a bit more rapidly at the thought. He hated farms.

He passed up the long gentle rise of the road behind the village and at the top sat down. Here, somewhere near this spot where he was sitting, he had fought once when he was a small boy. He had fought and lost. It was with a schoolmate named Eddie Baker, one day when he had been walking home with Julie Richard.

The standard school in Madrid village, where Norman spent eight short, satisfying terms, was remarkable for only one thing. Two camps of children succeeded during school hours in living amicably under the same roof. Even in his youth Norman was conscious of these two discordant forces, because he belonged by right of blood to both of them.

One group, big, blond, slow, thorough, came from the neat homes of the village fishermen. The other group, small, quick, ill-disciplined, with sharp black eyes like Norman's mother, were the sons and daughters of French-Canadian farmers who came down in an onslaught from the black hills.

Julie Richard was one of these. She arrived on an autumn morning when Norman was struggling with fourth-grade reading. He was eleven years old. He had grown too rapidly. His legs were lanky, and the short knee breeches his mother had made for him four months before already had crawled upward, till they did not conceal the tops of his knobby-kneed stockings. He was self-conscious and his voice had just broken.

Julie Richard was a small, round, jolly-faced girl, who could lose her temper for any back or the confounding routine of district school discipline. When she arrived Norman sat for the first time in his life a dim anticipation that he was going to be a marked man.

case, he watched Baker disappear into the woods north of Madrid Bay. It did not occur to him to return to the village and tell the story. A juvenile shame restrained him. He had taken his beating. That was his lot without having anyone else.

It Was a One-Sided Combat After That, Though Norman Tried Desperately Not to Let It Be So.

know it. Irrelevantly his mind returned to Julie Richard. What would she think of him now? He arrived home late for supper, and said nothing of the afternoon affair.

He never mentioned Eddie Baker's thievery to anyone. But he began to play less and less with Baker about the school yard. An enmity grew between them, born of a guilty secret which both boys had reason to keep. Baker had "gone partners" with his stepfather when he was eighteen. He labored with stout endurance in their leaking smelly boat. Norman saw him often, perhaps an average of once a day through the year. They spoke to each other with an air of casual disinterest. But it seemed to Norman that Ed . . . he had outgrown the name of Eddie . . . was showing a certain bravado in his presence of late.

Norman envied him his assurance. It was so much like his own father's. Once or twice he tried to speak to Julie, thinking that she might understand, but he never got farther than a word or two.

He could talk to Julie, though, about most things. She'd listen. She wasn't so set on his agreeing with her as the rest of the world. He rose briskly from the roadside and stretched his legs. Yes, he'd talk to Julie. Not till this minute had he known where he wanted to go this afternoon. It was the Richards whom he needed to see. It was because he was thickening unconsciously of Julie that he had climbed this hill in the first place, because of her that he remembered the old fight with Eddie Baker. Of course! He'd go to the Richards.

He stepped out rapidly through the woods to the shore of little Ottawa lake. This was the road he followed daily with Hans Miller's delivery wagon.

He left the main road at the next small bay and entered a lane bordered by a pair of snake fences with berry bushes in their angles. At the end of this lane a low plaster house, its roof shining with new shingles, stretched along the brow of a hill. Somehow the Richards house reminded Norman of the place that formerly belonged to his excitable French grandfather.

Norman never had felt at home at his grandfather's. Even now as he stalked up the path that same sense of loneliness seized him, the loneliness of a person accustomed to wide wet horizons when his vision is cramped by hills. An old man was pumping water at the berryard wall. He was short and dark, with cheeks as red as apples.

"Allie!" he cried. He almost ran toward Norman. His short legs splashing rapidly, water from the pail splashing up the dust. "Glad to see you. Norman boy! What you do out here? Quick, go in! I get chores out the way. Rain tonight!" He pounded on toward the barn.

"Julie . . ." Norman began.

"Julie's working," the old man shouted back vigorously. "Allie! Julie! Come see what the good saints brought you!"

Julie Richard looked up startled from the grateful of peas she was shelling on the back steps.

"Norman!" Julie cried.

She stood up quickly, forgetting the peas that slid from her apron. She seemed embarrassed for a moment. She did not speak. Only her eyes moved, absorbing him.

Norman never heard anyone describe Julie's eyes. But he knew exactly what they were like from long admiration of them. They were large, dark, yet not black, and they gave the impression of changing color the longer one looked into them.

Farm Problems To Be Interpreted

Far-Western Farmers' Viewpoint to Be Explained at Agricultural Conference at Ithaca—Farm Bureau Expansion Planned.

Chicago, Aug. 20.—Eastern agriculture will have opportunity to obtain an interpretation of the far-western farmers' view point on pressing farm problems, when M. S. Winder of Chicago, executive secretary of the American Farm Bureau Federation, appears on the program at the Agricultural Conference sponsored by the Farm Bureau, to be held at Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., August 29, 30 and 31.

A native of the state of Utah, Mr. Winder was educated at the Utah State Agricultural College, where he was trained to continue in the dairy business which has engaged three generations of his family in Salt Lake City. He served his state as legislator one term and two terms as senator. He has also been a dairy-rearer, treasurer of four statewide cooperative marketing organizations, so that his understanding of agriculture is well-grounded.

Advocates of "a square deal for agriculture," Mr. Winder insists that the future of the industry rests in the hands of the farmers themselves. Concerted action by a farm organization so numerous that it will be irrefragable when it goes into action is the need of the hour, he maintains. He stresses the value of organization and hopes to develop at the conference effective plans for expanding the Farm Bureau in the northeast section of the nation until it embraces the farmer. With such unified force, he declares, it will be a certainty that the agricultural class can obtain for itself a position which is economically on a parity with other more favored groups.

"The American farm Bureau Federation stands squarely behind the effort to apply the American protective system to agriculture," says Mr. Winder. "We will not withdraw from the fight until agriculture has obtained its position of equality along with other industry, finance, labor and other groups that enjoy our American protective system."

Greater Cooperation Necessary.

Organization will solve the difficulties of the farmer, he contends. "Unless we farmers have the vision to use our influence and our opportunities for more cooperation with our neighbors," he says, "we are going to make a very serious mistake. If we sit down and fold our arms and wait for the better day, it will never arrive. And the organized groups—the bankers, the railroad folks, the manufacturers and labor, will continue to go unrecalled to the needs of agriculture."

"The American Farm Bureau Federation now numbers more than a million farm families in its membership. With this mighty force behind us, much has been accomplished in arousing the country to a knowledge of the farmers' plight. With twice that number in the ranks we can make our demands that much more effective."

In Farm Bureau work Mr. Winder started at the bottom; his first connection being as solicitor without pay. Later he became president of the Salt Lake County Farm Bureau and for three years was secretary of the Utah State Farm Bureau. Last fall he assumed his present responsible position in the national organization and now makes his home in Chicago, where he is devoting all his time to Farm Bureau work.

In his Utah Farm Bureau labors he became deeply interested in the problems of farm taxation and while the state legislature did notable tax reform work which brought him recognition as an expert. He has traveled extensively, is a man of cultural interests, an orator of great ability who will not fail to impress his hearers at the Ithaca conference.

The propagandist hopes the editor won't be able to distinguish between his propaganda and news.

Expert Angler Teaches Coolidge

As the President goes by the White House, it is usually taken for granted that he is a fisherman. But when he is seen with a fishing rod, it is usually taken for granted that he is a fisherman. But when he is seen with a fishing rod, it is usually taken for granted that he is a fisherman.

George Babb, who was born on the river and who, in the intervals of casting dry flies for the past fifty years or so, has watched his hair, selected in the stream, turn gray, was chosen by Mr. Coolidge as his instructor in this region. He now takes the President on the stream every day and demonstrates what half a century of experience has taught him about the tastes of trout and how to imitate the ways of winged insects on the water with blue flies.

Bob Roy, who is Mr. Coolidge's close companion on all fishing trips, and who had been taught, not without difficulty, to stay quiet in the bottom of the craft and not stir or bark or otherwise make a nuisance of himself, forgot his good behavior when Babb was taken along for his lesson. What he then saw was too much for him.

In the course of his lesson Babb sat behind the chair in which Mr. Coolidge sat in the bow of the canoe and encircled his pupil with his arms to place those of the chief executive in the right position. From where Bob Roy was crouching this looked like very suspicious business and the collie, determined not to take any chances, stole softly up to the unsuspecting Babb and snapped at his calves, the canoe narrowly missing being upset.

Babb declares the president will take a great dry fly fisherman. Mr. Coolidge, according to Babb, does by instinct what it takes usually much trouble to teach other anglers, namely, hook the fish at the first snap of the trout's lightning-quick jaws. The rest of the fisherman's knocks Mr. Coolidge is picking up very rapidly, Babb said, owing to his natural studious temperament.

Bake $800 for Children's Resort.

More than $800 was raised at the annual fair held at Squirrel Inn, Bright Park, Haines Falls, for the benefit of the North Mountain Home at that place. The home has been conducted for several years by George F. Nelson of New York city, former secretary of the State of Bishops of the Protestant Episcopal Church, and his sisters as summer vacation resort for several hundred Italian children from New York's upper east side.

Six Pioneer Infantry Meeting.

The local members of the 51st Pioneer Infantry will hold a meeting in the armory on Tuesday evening, August 21, at eight o'clock to discuss plans for attending the fifth annual reunion at Albany on Saturday, August 25. Any member interested in going should be present at the meeting.

PORT EWEN

The Dorcas Society will hold a shore party at Tucker's beach Thursday afternoon. A covered dish supper will be served at 6 o'clock.

IRISHMAN AND JEW WON CONGRESSIONAL MEDALS

New York, Aug. 20.—This is the story of the Irishman and the Jew, of how they got lost in a fog in No Man's Land—and emerged, the strangest pair of Congressional Medal winners on the records of the A. E. F.

First Sergeant Sidney Gumpertz, the Jew, has told the story; told how one company happened to produce two Congressional Medal winners, when there were not enough such honors awarded in the entire A. E. F. to fill a trench helmet. His recital, ten years after the event, is published in the current issue of McClure's Magazine.

"It was the fog," says Sergeant Gumpertz. He means the thick, wet, murky that dropped suddenly over No Man's Land at Bois des Forges, France, at daybreak September 26, 1918, just as Company E, 132nd Infantry, under Captain George H. Mallon, the Irishman, went over the top for the assault.

That fog, plus an enemy barrage, certainly spoiled a well-planned attack. It split up Mallon's company into little knots of men, groping about as though blind. The captain got himself lost. So did the sergeant. And thereby hangs the tale.

Disdains Gun, Uses Fist.

Mallon, a massive Irishman, managed to pick up nine stragglers and made toward the bursts of flame that marked the enemy guns. In the fog his little crew stumbled on nine machine gun nests and took them without the loss of a man, so suddenly did they appear out of the murk. They crept through the fog on a battery of four powerful howitzers. Mallon either couldn't see to shoot or disdained his sidearms. He bumped into the commander of the battery—and knocked him out cold with his bare fists! The artillerymen, seeing their leader fall and not knowing how many Americans were upon them, surrendered. In all, Mallon and his nine men took 100 prisoners and 16 guns.

Gumpertz? Oh, he found a platoon, took two volunteers from it and captured one machine gun by creeping up on it through the fog. With two more volunteers he repeated the maneuver, but his men were killed and he kept on alone, his automatic blazing whenever a rift in the fog showed the gun nest ahead. Leaping on the parapet he covered the trench, killing the gunner and taking nine of the crew single-handed.

Still advancing, recounts the McClure article, he crawled up to a concrete pillbox from which the enemy was blazing death, and into the tiny gun slit slipped a hand grenade. There was a blast. Then the pillbox was silent. Neither Gumpertz nor Captain Mallon was touched by a bullet during the entire five hours of their encounter in the fog, although the sergeant later received a wound which kept him out of the battle of the Argonne.

LAST NIGHT on the RADIO

Reception was excellent Sunday, all day and evening, with only trifling local interference. WGY and KDKA had wire trouble and their programs were interrupted for a time, but as this occurred during chain broadcasting, it was easy to pick up the program from some other station. Among the good 1X stations both Saturday and Sunday evenings were WLS, WTAM, WLW, WSAL, WJHT, WJR and WGN.

Reception this morning was almost miraculously strong and clear. One of the virtu artists of the Western plainsman, "Whoopie-Ti-Yo," a cowboy song, will give a touch of atmosphere to the Stromberg-Carlson program of August 24, from 10 to 10:30, through stations associated with the National Broadcasting Co. There will also be included among the quartet numbers an interesting Hawaiian song, while a violin solo a plantation melody is listed.

HUDSON RIVER NIGHT LINE BUILDING NEW STEAMERS

Two new steamers of the Hudson River Night Line, which will have capacity for carrying over 300 automobiles each and between 400 and 500 passengers, will be ready for operation at the beginning of the season of 1929. While the two new boats will serve primarily as a means for the transportation of automobiles, motor trucks, and trailers, the most modern accommodations will be provided, according to present plans, on the upper decks for chauffeurs, truck drivers, and a limited number of foot passengers. By entirely eliminating the cost of loading and unloading freight in New York and in the Albany-Troy area, the boats are expected to save their cost of construction, which will be in the neighborhood of $1,200,000 for both, within a few years. In addition to extending the trucking area 150 miles beyond New York city, the boats will enable the company to carry automobiles on a large scale, increasing the total auto carrying capacity on peak nights to as many as 500 cars. A low rate will be established which will make possible the carrying of a car at from 1-3 to 1/2 of the actual cost of driving between New York and the Capitol area.

Farewell Surprise Party.

A delightful farewell surprise party was tendered Miss Aurelia E. Money at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Irving Snyder, No. 49 East Pierpoint street, by June Van Derzee, assisted by Mildred Van Gassebeck, on Wednesday evening, August 15. The rooms were beautifully decorated with flowers and plants. Games and exhibitions of the Charleston given by Gladice Van Gassebeck, Sonny Anderson, Daisy and Bernice Smith were greatly enjoyed by all. At 11 o'clock a delicious repast was served to over 30 guests. Miss Money received many beautiful and useful gifts. Those present were the Misses Aurelia Money, Eleanor Sampson, Frances and Blanche Proctor, Daisy and Bernice Smith, Mildred and Gladice Van Gassebeck, Mildred and Rose Etta Kortwright, Elfrida and Juanita Clarke, Cecilia Van Derzee, Ada Brodhead, Marjorie DeWitt, Elmir Basset, Beatrice Eddy, Anna Snyder, June Van Derzee, the Messrs. Dan Van Dyke, David Boyd, Edward McKinnon, William Van Derzee, John Proctor, Jr., James and William Brown, Allison Mowers, Sonny Anderson, Clarence Van Demark, Henry Van Derzee, Teddy Smith, Ralph Kortwright, Clemet Johnson, Mrs. John L. Proctor, Mrs. George Hannibal, Sr., Mrs. Irving Snyder, and Mrs. Clarence Van Derzee. Miss Money left Thursday for her home in Newark, Del. The guests departed in the wee hours of the morning, all vowing the young hostess a charming entertainment.

Enoch Vognild Dies at Woodstock

Was Teacher in Woodstock School— Had Lovable Record as Artist— Came From Stamford, Conn.

Enoch Vognild, artist and instructor, died at Woodstock on Saturday, August 18. Mr. Vognild came to Woodstock from Stamford, Conn., early in the season and taught with the Art School of Design. He made himself very friendly with the other artists and instructors at the colony immediately; his work was very successful; a one-man exhibit run in Woodstock last month resulted in several sales of his canvases. Mr. Vognild had studied in Paris, and in American art schools; he founded the Southern Florida League of Artists at Miami Beach, Florida; his paintings were featured in Stamford, Conn., last season by the Women's Club of that place. He had painted along the eastern coast of the Atlantic, in many other places in the United States. He was 49 years of age.

His sudden death was a shock to all the artists at Woodstock, who held him in high esteem for his personal qualities and for his sincere, capable activities as an instructor and as a painter. He leaves a wife and a 20-months' old baby. The genuine sympathy of all his friends and acquaintances is extended to his wife and relatives.

Maverick Concert Pleases Audience

(By F. G. Clough.)

The concert at the Maverick Hall, Woodstock, given Sunday afternoon, was another of the fine music recitals which are giving the Maverick a wide reputation and splendid following among music lovers at the art colony and nearby towns.

Sandor Harmati, violinist, made his premier at the Maverick, playing with Gerald Kunz, viola; Paul Kefer, cello, and Sandor Vas at the piano (Sandor is a popular name for musicians). The quartet gave selections from Faure and Schumann.

In the second passage from Faure, a scherzo, it was that Sandor Vas showed himself to be a pianist of parts; he had a bit of artistic dash when necessary, a restraint and delicacy of action that captivated the audience. The second part, an adagio movement, presented a larger, heavier mood.

The Schumann piano quartet was even more excellent, and rendered with perfectness on the part of all the players. Schumann's scherzo selection surpassed Faure's in swiftness, in range. An andante cantabile swung into solemn, majestic strains and chords, ending with delightfully harmonious music which the audience applauded roundly. Sandor Harmati's violin work was of the first water; Gerald Kunz played the viola splendidly; Paul Kefer's cello parts were as they should have been; the trio balanced, the three men were of equal facility and talent, at least they played together as one, both as to performance and evident mood of personality; in passages one saw their eyes twinkle with pleasure, or again settled to their serious work of interpreting the fuller strains. Altogether it was a finished recital which the musicians gave at the Maverick.

There were many Kingstonians present; there were visitors from other places, celebrities from the art colony—a hall packed and the outdoor seats and benches filled.

TOM MIX AND COMEDIAN ENGAGE IN FIST FIGHT

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 20 (P).—A wile crack about Tom Mix's future in the talking movies was credited by Will Morrissey, a less-famous film actor, was the cause of a fist fight, discussion of which claimed the film colony today.

Morrissey, rated as a comedian, and his wife, Mildred Miller, were taken to the Venice police station for first aid and investigation following the affair, which occurred Saturday night at the housewarming party given by George Bohan, an actor. Morrissey was said to have been badly in need of first aid.

"I told Tom his horse Tony had a great future in the talks," Morrissey told the officers, "I said the horse could at least snort, but what could Tom do?"

Mix yesterday admitted there had been a fight, caused by Morrissey's abusiveness, but denied he kicked the comedian, as charged, or struck the comedian's wife.

Dozens of film actors and directors were said to have furnished a ring-side audience.

The comedian told police he offered to shake hands with Mix when the party broke up, but that the film cowboy struck him on the jaw instead. "I knocked him down twice and then the rug slipped from under me," Morrissey said. "I fell backward, and those high heels of Tom's boots thumped my head like a drum. But boys, I got a break—Tony wasn't there."

Mrs. Morrissey declared her husband was knocked down, and that Mix "was kicking him horribly."

"I tried to come to Will's aid, but Mix cracked me in the eye, after saying 'Oh, you are a member of the family too!'"

The cowboy said the comedian had been abusive all evening and when the party broke up, followed him to the door and "swung on me a few times."

Mix said he pushed the comedian away, but when Morrissey continued following him, calling insults, he turned and knocked his pursuer down.

"Some woman grabbed me but I just shook her off," said Mix. "I certainly didn't kick anyone and I didn't strike any woman."

Several hours after their arrest early yesterday morning the Morrisseys obtained their release on $250 bail each.

Morrissey's "wise cracking" has featured in at least two Los Angeles court sessions, and bringing a complaint charge for the actor, and again causing a mistrial of a suit in which a friend was involved.

Blue Sox Beat Internationals

The Blue Sox added another win to their string by defeating the Internationals of Newburgh, 7-4, at Hasbrouck Park Sunday afternoon.

The tilt was witnessed by a goodly number of fans, who visited the park to see the Blue Sox battle the Fro-Jays, but that team was unable to appear. The Internationals, composed of a number of Fro-Joy players, put up a good game, however, and the spectators were pleased with the exhibition.

Nick Huber did good work on the mound for the Kingston team. He allowed ten scattered hits and retired eight of the Internationals by the strike out route. The Blue Sox touched up Porter for 14 hits. He had to be relieved by Rose toward the end of the game and this hurler allowed one hit and one run.

Tommy Lewis was the hitting king of the day. He made good three times out of four trips to the plate. One clout was good for three bases. Bob Slicker, Blue Sox shortstop, grabbed the pill eight times without a miss.

AMERICAN AVIATORS PAY TRIBUTE TO "WINGS"

The striking tribute accorded to "Wings" by Commander Richard C. Byrd when he told Jesse L. Lasky that the war aviation picture which opens at the Kingston Theatre August 23 for three days, was not only tremendously thrilling but technically perfect from the viewpoint of a flyer, is amplified by the opinions of three well-known American aviators who saw service in the World War. They agreed that "Wings" presents a faithful reproduction of war in the clouds and praised the extremely difficult achievement of photographing war plane maneuvers.

"Wings" has undoubtedly some of the best photography of flying that has ever been taken, and it shows the danger and horror of air fighting in a most realistic and gripping way. While there are a few faults that could be pointed out as unconvincing, the action is so real that these faults do not destroy the illusion of actual combat. This was clearly demonstrated when one aviator, who saw several months of service at the front as a pilot, and pilot called out "maneuver" as the pilot on the screen failed to do so when attacked. The crashes are apparently real crashes, and it makes one's blood run cold to see them.

Rondouts Trounce Mechanics' Team

The Rondout A. C. trounced the Junior Order of American Mechanics, 14-2, at Block Park Sunday afternoon. Jimmy Doyle, Rondout hurler, allowed the Mechanics 19 hits but kept them well scattered. The losers scored their two runs in the eighth inning.

The Seventh Ward team netted three runs in the first inning. Crispell and Feeney singled, Krom and Leonard hit for two bases, which scored three runners.

Not another run was made until the fifth when the Rondouts after a rampage with the willow collected six runs. Doyle started the session by striking out. Crispell registered a two-bagger, Feeney singled and Peters got a walk, which filled the sacks. Crispell and Feeney crossed home on Leonard's single. Peters scored on Stump's single. A circuit clout by Spiegel brought the total of the inning to six runs. At this stage of the game Dietz relieved the Mechanics' hurler, Les Caunitz, and retired the side.

The Rondouts added three more runs to their score in the sixth inning and one each in the seventh and eighth.

Two runs were gleaned by the Mechanics in the eighth inning when Brown doubled, Slover got a free pass and Dietz scored the two with a double.

All-Stars Took Tilt from Pan-Ams

The Kingston All-Stars in an interesting game defeated the Pan-Ams, 4-1, at the Saugerties road diamond Sunday afternoon. The game was the third of a series, which has left the teams on even terms.

The first meeting was a tie, the second was capped by the oilmen and as the All-Stars proved their supremacy Sunday a "rubber" game will likely be played.

Winston did the pitching for the All-Stars and was in supreme form. He allowed but five hits and made six of the Pan-Am batters take three healthy swings with fatal results. He pulled out of a threatening hole in the seventh. The sacks were loaded and one man had gone out. Winston fanned Rider and allowed Hart to smack the pill for a short fly to Glaser, which retired the side without a score.

The All-Stars' infield was in fine playing form and came in for a deal of credit in the win. Glaser, Davitt and Cragan came through with a pair of neat double plays; Moore made three.

The second, fourth and fifth innings were the scoring periods. Glaser started the first half of the second by getting a pass and was boosted along by Knight's single and a sacrifice by Smedes. He scored when Moore singled. In the last half of the inning the Pan-Ams registered their only score of the game. Merritt walked, was helped along by two sacrifice hits and stole home.

In the fourth Glaser started with a double and reached home after Knight sacrificed and Smedes singled. Leskie singled to open the fifth and reached second on a neat punt by Cragan. Schwab went to first after being hit with a pitched ball and Leskie and Cragan scored on Glaser's double.

U. S. ATHLETICS WIN OVER IRISH AND CANADIANS.

Dublin, Ireland, Aug. 20 (P).—Rolling up an impressive total of first places, United States athletes have romped away with team honors in the Tailteann games, the "Olympics of the Irish," just concluded.

Battling against Irish and Canadian opposition, the representatives of the Stars and Stripes won 14 first place to four for Canada and three for Ireland.

Harold Gibson, Illinois A. C. Star and Olympic decathlon and high jump champion in 1924, was the outstanding individual performer, taking five first places. The middle westerner took the running and standing high jumps, the standing broad jump, the hop, step and jump, and the three standing jumps. Just to make Uncle Sam's triumph in the jumping events a thorough one, Al Bates, of Penn State, took the running broad jump.

Leo Lermont of the Boston A. A. won the 5,000 meters and the four-mile runs, the only other American entrant to make as many as two first places. Other American victories were registered by Lloyd Hahn in the 1,500 meters, Jole Ray in the marathon, Johnny Gibson in the hurdles, Walter Cegan in the 3,000 meter steeplechase, Edmund Black in the 56 pound weight throw, and Charley McGinnis in the pole vault.

Investigation by the coroner and district attorney. According to information the aged man attempted to cross Winsor avenue after stepping from behind a car and was hit by the car of Williams. A compound fracture of the skull caused his death.

Tagging Major League Base

By Herbert W. Barker, Associated Press Sports Writer.

It's been a long and tedious ascent to the National League summit, but John McGraw and his New York Giants finally made it.

Pushing over the St. Louis Cardinals yesterday for the third time in a row, the Giants crowded past BB McKechnies' tottering fighters and for first time since early in the present campaign could look back and see all their seven rivals behind them.

It scarcely can be said that the Giants have a foothold on the top rung—it's no more than a toe hold and a very insecure one at that. A matter of cold fact it's necessary to get out the percentage tables to prove that the clan McGraw really is in the lead. Mathematically the Giants are leading by three percentage points, but in games won and lost the Cardinals still show the way by half a game.

The figures:

	Won	Lost	Pct.
New York	55	43	.566
St. Louis	49	49	.500

In a game as "crucial" as yesterday's it was fitting enough that the honor of pitching the Giants into first place should fall to the lot of Larry Benton. The sorrel-top, hurling big 20th victory of the year, was touched for nine hits, but met every emergency with rare skill and courage. For the third time in as many days the Giants' margin at the end was only one run and strangely enough, all three scores were identical—3 to 2.

The game was won and lost in the fourth inning when the New Yorker pierced Wee Willie Sherdel's defense for three hits, a fielder's choice and a sacrifice fly that netted them all their runs. That was Sherdel's only bad spot, but in the face of Benton's superlative pitching it was enough to send the small lefthander down to defeat. The Cardinals never gave up trying. They filled the bases in the ninth inning, but the unrumored Benton induced Douthitt to lift to Maun and the game was over. Two singles coupled with an infield out gave the Cards their first run in the fifth inning. Their second was personally accounted for by Ernest Orsatti, who punched out a home run in the sixth his second in as many days.

Beck's single with the bases filled in the ninth gave the Cubs a 2 to 1 victory over the Brooklyn Robins. Hartnett crossing the plate with the winning run on the shortstop's blow Charlie Root and old Bill Doak hooked up in a pretty pitching duel with Root's steadiness and an airtight defense in back of him as the deciding factors.

The Cincinnati Reds took undputed possession of fourth place by trimming the Boston Braves, 4 to 3. Ray Kolo was battered for three singles and a triple in the first inning when the Braves scored all their runs but allowed only three scattered safeties thereafter. The Reds, through timely hitting at the expense of Palmero, Toledo recruit, and Cantwell, scored three runs in the third and added the winning marker in the fourth.

Sixty-five thousand fans watched the New York Yankees split even in a dual bill with the Cleveland Indians. Martin Autry's homer with Moran on base in the tenth gave the Indians the first game 3 to 2. The Yanks came back with one in the half, driving Willis Huddlin from the box, but Bayne stopped the champions dead in their tracks. Uhl, Miller and Underhill were pounded for 13 hits in the nightcap which went to the Yanks by a 19 to 2 score. Hence Johnson held the Indians to six hits.

Five Washington pitchers couldn't stop a savage Tiger assault at the National Capital and Detroit downed the Senators, 9 to 6. Bob Fothergill got four hits, three of them doubles.

Spartans Lost At Woodstock

The Spartans, although they out-hit the Woodstock team 17-10 at the art colony diamond Sunday afternoon, dropped a game to their opponents 11-7. Several fielding errors contributed to the defeat of the Kingston team.

The fourth inning was the big scoring session of the wining team. In this frame they collected eight runs off Bob Corrigan, who held them scoreless for the first three stanzas. He was relieved by Ken Williams who finished the game. Three runs were gleaned off Williams.

"Dutch" Hahn did the best batting for the Spartans by collecting two doubles and a single off Garrett in four trips to the plate.

The Spartans have a busy schedule for this week when they will play three local teams at the Fair Grounds. Tonight they will take on the Colonial Trucking Company team. Wednesday the Blue Sox and Friday night the Clermonts.

St. Peter's Annual Parish Festival

The Ladies of St. Peter's Parish will have their annual festival on Tuesday evening for the parish festival and picnic to be held at the school hall, Wednesday afternoon and evening, August 22.

Amusements of various kinds during the afternoon will be enjoyed by the children and adults who wish to attend. The doors will open at 2 o'clock. Games for the children will start at 2:30. Prizes will be awarded.

A supper will be served from 5 to 8 p. m. It is expected that many will partake of the meal, which will be made up of delicious things to eat, tastefully prepared by excellent cooks. St. Peter's suppers always are enjoyed and undoubtedly the waitresses will be kept serving a large number of patrons.

Following on the recently conditioned alleys will be enjoyed during the evening by both men and women. It is anticipated there will be a great many to engage in this sport. Other amusements will be had for those who do not bowl.

The festival will close with a dance in the evening. The floor at the parish hall is in good condition for dancing and it is expected the regular crowd that enjoys this amusement at St. Peter's hall, augmented by many others, will be on hand for the occasion.

ONE KILLED, 17 INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENTS

Syracuse, Aug. 20 (AP).—A woman was killed, three persons were probably fatally hurt and 14 others sustained minor injuries in a series of automobile accidents here Sunday. The dead woman was Mrs. Frank Lorey, of Detroit, who was killed when the automobile in which she and her family were riding collided with another car. Her husband and five children escaped injury.

Three persons sustained fractured skulls in different accidents. They were Mrs. Elizabeth Clinton, Mrs. Helen Kavich, 39, and Fred Renzi.

Dividends Declared.
New York, Aug. 20 (AP).—The South Penn Oil Co., which owns about 15,000 wells in the Appalachian field, declared an extra dividend of 25 cents today and the regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents, both payable September 29 to stock of record September 15.

The E. E. duPont de Nemours & Co., declared the regular quarterly dividends of $2.50 on the common and $1.50 on the debenture stock, the former payable September 15, to stock of record August 31 and the latter payable October 25 to stock of record October 10.

Motorcyclist Killed in Crash.
Syracuse, Aug. 20 (AP).—Emerson Corwin, 19, of Centrepore, was killed almost instantly last night when the motorcycle he was driving crashed into the rear of an automobile near Weedsport. His companion, Frank Corrigan, 19, of Weedsport, who was riding on the rear seat of the motorcycle, suffered possible internal injuries, lacerations. Corwin was dead when help arrived. Corrigan was taken to a physician's office at Weedsport. The automobile was driven by George Phelps of Auburn.

WANTED
50 THOUSAND SKINNY MEN

To Put on at Least 35 Pounds of Solid Flesh in 30 Days.

Countless thousands of underweight men and women have got rid of the scrawny frame and figure by a simple easy treatment that is sure and inexpensive. They really marvel how quickly those who try it take on flesh where flesh is most needed.

Hollows in neck and chest fill out and narrow shoulders chested men begin to take on a decided manliness in just a few weeks. The one great scientific reason producer that people who need more flesh can depend upon is McEly's Tablets and besides helping you to develop an attractive figure these sugar coated tablets bring to all that take them more energy, strength and vigor—they have proven a superb tonic.

WOMEN PREPARE FOR SMITH NOTIFICATION.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 20 (AP).—With the arrival today of former Governor Nellie Tayloe Ross of Wyoming, vice chairman of the Democratic national committee, feminine Smith supporters will begin their last minute preparations for the notification ceremonies Wednesday evening, when Governor Smith will be told of his selection as presidential nominee.

Mrs. Ross will be the first woman member of the national committee to arrive, and will be in active charge of the women's affairs until the arrival of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, chairman of the women's advisory board, Wednesday morning.

The Democratic vice presidential nominee and his wife, Senator and Mrs. Joe Robinson, will arrive in New York Tuesday and will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt in the automobile trip to Albany. Here the Robinsons will be house guests at the Executive Mansion.

Mrs. Roosevelt has completed plans for the reception to be tendered Mrs. Smith in New York the day after the notification.

The Women's Democratic Club, the Women's Civic Organization, the State Democratic Forum, and the Democratic county committee of Greater New York will be hosts.

In the receiving line besides Mrs. Smith will be Mrs. Ross, Mrs. Roosevelt, Mrs. James J. Walker, wife of the mayor of New York, Mrs. Daniel O'Day, acting chairman of the state committee, and one member of each of the counties represented.

All women who will attend the notification ceremony have been invited to the reception the following day, as well as the members of Mrs. Roosevelt's advisory board. More than 3,000 invitations have been issued.

The list of guests includes Mrs. John J. Raskob, wife of the chairman of the national committee; Mrs. Peter Golet Gerry, wife of the Rhode Island Senator; Ida Tarbell, member of the advisory committee; Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, committee woman from Washington; Mrs. Emily Newell Blair, former vice chairman of the national committee; Miss Agnes Hart Wilson, who is running for Congress in her home district in Pennsylvania; Congresswoman Mary T. Norton of New Jersey; and Miss Elizabeth Marbury of New York.

There will be no feminine formalities in Albany on Wednesday, due to the brevity of the ceremony and the immediate departure of the nominee to New York, where he will have a series of conferences with various political advisors.

It will be a politically and socially prominent group of women who will take their seats on the Capitol steps behind the speakers' stand on the evening that Governor Smith accepts the nomination.

The list of women visitors to the city includes the national committee woman from nearly every state in the country, in addition to many local Smith supporters who carry on their work without benefit of title.

BRINGS OPTIMISTIC REPORT FROM THE SOUTH

New York, Aug. 20 (AP).—An optimistic report on conditions in the south was brought to New York today by Joseph T. Robinson, Democratic vice-presidential nominee, who said upon his arrival from his home in Arkansas that Governor Smith's popularity "is rapidly growing" throughout that section.

"Since my last visit to New York at the time of the national committee meeting in July," he said, "I have been served with many prominent Democrats in my home state and from various parts of the south."

"Some dissatisfaction exists, but it is now clear that this will be more than offset by a awakening on the part of many Democrats who are in the habit of accepting success of our party in that part of the country as a foregone conclusion, and whose interest is being quickened by the Republican threat to invade the south and by the threatened bolt of a few Democrats."

"The people of the south are becoming better acquainted with the record and personal characteristics of the head of the Democratic ticket. Governor Smith's popularity is rapidly growing. The people are anxious to hear him."

Senator Robinson, traveling in a private car, arrived here from Little Rock. He was accompanied by his wife, his brother-in-law, Grady Miller and Mrs. Miller, Vincent M. Mills, Democratic national committeeman from Arkansas, and Mrs. Mills, and his private secretary, Carey Martin.

The senator expects to remain here until tomorrow night or Wednesday morning, when he will go to Albany for Governor Smith's notification. He has mapped out a busy schedule for the day, including a number of conferences with members of the Democratic speakers' bureau over his speaking itinerary in the early stages of the campaign. Senator Robinson declared that there had been a "tremendous change in public sentiment" in the south.

"The growing solidarity for the Democratic ticket in the south," he said, "is caused by a better understanding of the record and the obvious sincerity, earnestness, forthrightness of the head of the Democratic ticket. Governor Smith's popularity will grow as the campaign progresses."

"The people everywhere are anxious to hear him and the Democrats of the nation may be assured that the south will roll up a tremendous majority for the ticket."

Butler Rejects Hoover's Views

On Prohibition and a Naval Program as Set Forth in His Acceptance Speech—Breaks Silence On Politics.

New York, Aug. 20 (AP).—Herbert Hoover's views on prohibition and a naval program as set forth in his speech of acceptance are rejected by Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University and a life-long Republican.

In a letter printed by the New York Times today Mr. Butler broke silence on politics that he has maintained since the Kansas City convention. He expressed confidence that millions of earnest Republicans are in agreement with him.

Referring to prohibition the letter says: "What I wish to make entirely plain is that no candidate of my party for president can commit me or countless others like me to any such doctrines or any such policies."

In this connection Dr. Butler quotes Patrick Henry: "If this be treason make the most of it."

"In regard to Mr. Hoover's acceptance of the timeworn but wholly false argument that what he describes as 'adequate preparation for defense' is a factor in cooperation in the maintenance of peace," Dr. Butler writes: "The contrary is now the well demonstrated fact."

18th Amendment Must Be Deported.
Dr. Butler describes the 18th amendment as "an alien and unnaturalized invader of the constitution," saying it must be deported if the constitution is to be preserved.

"Anyone who is opposed to the repeal of the 18th amendment and who is also opposed to that process of statutory obsolescence that is now called nullification," Dr. Butler adds, "must then be in favor of their only alternative, which is the continuance of the present reign of lawlessness, debauchery and government-made crime."

Dr. Butler describes Mr. Hoover as "accepting the formula of that paid band of agitators, lobbyists and persecutors which calls itself the Anti-Saloon" when "he speaks of nullification as if that were an unheard of and horrid thing."

The letter adds: "The process and action which it is now fashionable to call nullification are the accepted and usual ways by which any free people, and particularly the American people, have gotten rid of laws they did not like or that were offensive to their sense of justice and right."

Sorry Day for Republican Party.
In closing Dr. Butler said: "It would indeed be a sorry day for the Republican party if it were to turn its back upon all its principles, its traditions and its ideals in order to put the sinister figure symbolic of the Anti-Saloon League in a place of honor and authority among its counselors. Should that day come, and should the door of hope be closed to those hosts of Republicans whose minds and hearts are set upon Republican leadership in restoring the purity of our Federal form of government, in putting an end to the rapidly growing menace of centralized bureaucracy at Washington, and in advancing the cause of temperance while protecting the civil liberties of the people, then the Republican party, as we have known and served and honored it, would have come to a dismal and discreditable end."

Dr. Butler had been affiliated with the Republican party ever since he was old enough to take an active part in politics.

Daughter Heads State Committee.
His daughter, Miss Sarah Schuyler Butler, is at present acting chairman of the New York State Republican Committee, owing to the recent death of Chairman George K. Morris. Miss Butler is the permanent vice chairman of the state committee, and as such is in charge of the party's work among women in New York.

Referring to the naval construction proposals presented to and discarded by the last Congress, Dr. Butler said: "That amazing proposal was made in the interest of 'national security,' meaning thereby swagger, and it rested upon precisely the principle which Mr. Hoover now enunciates and accepts. A whole host of Republicans dissent absolutely on this point and will make that dissent manifest by every means in their power. When the American people pledge renunciation of war they mean what they say."

SENATOR ROBINSON GLAD BUTLER IS DISSATISFIED

New York, Aug. 20 (AP).—Senator Joe T. Robinson, Democratic vice presidential candidate, commenting today on Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler's letter regarding Herbert Hoover's views on prohibition and a naval program, said:

"I am very glad to read Dr. Butler's statement and to know that he is dissatisfied with some aspects of political questions presented by Mr. Hoover. I don't think I care to make any further comment on Mr. Butler's statement or on any other political question at this time."

DOES NOT THINK BUTLER'S VIEWS MAKE DIFFERENCE

New York, Aug. 20 (AP).—Secretary of the Treasury Andrew Mellon, returning on the Leviathan from a European vacation today, said he did not think that Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler's variance with Herbert Hoover on the prohibition and peace issues would "make any appreciable difference in the outcome of the election."

Secretary Mellon read Dr. Butler's letter when morning newspapers were brought aboard the liner at quarantine. He declined to amplify his brief statement, or to talk on other political matters.

Women Greet Mrs. Hoover

Hoover Train en Route to Dodge City, Kan., Aug. 20 (AP).—The three civilizations which have blended into the citizenry that populates the present state of New Mexico participated today in the first informal reception of Mrs. Herbert Hoover aboard the train bearing her husband eastward.

Indian, English and Spanish bloods filled the veins of those who boarded the train at Albuquerque to extend their greeting to the wife of the Republican presidential nominee. The early Indian culture of the country, traces of which are still seen in the Adobe Pueblos along the route of the train, was represented by Princess Talsania, one of the last of the ruling family of the Oklahoma Cherokees, and several New Mexican Indian women in full tribal costume.

In the elaborate white buckskin ceremonial dress of her rank, the Princess Talsania, one of the last of the ruling family of the Oklahoma Cherokees, and several New Mexican Indian women in full tribal costume.

The proud Spanish tradition left to America by the Conquistadores, who before the Pilgrim Fathers landed had built a governor's palace that still stands at Santa Fe, was personified by Mrs. Adelina Otero Warren. She represented a group of women of Spanish family who have broken with the traditions of the past to take active part in the political organization of the state and she herself was running for congresswoman when Mrs. Hoover knew her as Mrs. Otero several years ago.

At Lamy, Mrs. Joe Ortiz Y Pina came and at Las Vegas, where the candidate was introduced in Spanish and a mob of dark-skinned little boys tore their shirts off in a mad scramble to get to the car, a separate contingent of Spanish speaking women accompanied their husbands up on the platform to meet the candidate.

The last layer of culture in the southwest represented by the people of English blood were among the women received by Mrs. Hoover at Albuquerque. They were members of the Republican Women's Club and the Women's City Club of Albuquerque.

In the name of both organizations Mrs. John W. Wilson, president of the former, presented to Mrs. Hoover a replica of the intricately designed and famous old Indian turquoise and silver bracelet of 43 stones, made by Pueblo Indians.

Six Soldiers Lost in Jungles

Panama, Aug. 20 (AP).—Lieut. George S. Beatty, U. S. A., and five enlisted men from Fort Davis were missing today in the jungles which they penetrated eighteen days ago in an effort to hike across the Isthmus.

The group formed part of a large reconnaissance party, the remainder of which, headed by Lieut. George S. Stewart, returned to Fort Davis. Stewart reported that on August 15 twelve of the party's pack mules slid into a deep ravine about twelve miles from Portobello, and it being impossible to extricate the animals without aid, his group determined to return for assistance while Beatty and his men pressed on toward Nombre De Dios.

Beatty expected to reach his destination Friday and instructed Stewart to send out a search party in case he failed to report at Nombre De Dios by then. Nothing has been heard from him since.

A search party was ordered to set out from Fort Davis. Meanwhile Lieut. Stewart, with twenty men, have started for the ravine with equipment to extricate the mules.

The Beatty party is accompanied by one of the best jungle guides on the Isthmus and officials express confidence in his ability to lead the party to safety. Beatty was awarded the distinguished service cross for bravery in the World War.

Autos Needed for Orphans' Outing

Tuesday the sisters and the children of the Sacred Heart Orphanage at West Park will enjoy their annual outing and automobiles are needed to transport them to the picnic grounds near Saugerties. Anyone wishing to help the Knights of Columbus in making this affair a success by donating their automobile are requested to call E. Frank Flanagan, 500; William O'Reilly, 1509, or David Schenck, 145.

Cars will leave the orphanage at West Park at 9:30 a. m., daylight saving time. From there the automobiles with the happy children will leave for the picnic grounds, where games will be held and dinner served.
